

Malaysian Journal of Ophthalmology

*“All our dreams can come true if we have the courage to pursue them”
~ Walter E Disney ~*

It has been a dream for many of us to have our own journal. It became a reality on 15 August 2018 when our online journal became available at <https://www.myjo.org/index.php/myjo/index>.

Malaysian Journal of Ophthalmology (MyJO) is a free online quarterly journal published by Kugler Publications. MyJO is the official journal for the Malaysian Society of Ophthalmology and other important boards in the Ophthalmology fraternity such as the College of Ophthalmologists and the Malaysian Universities Conjoint Committee for Ophthalmology (MUCCO). MyJO aims to provide a platform for Malaysian ophthalmologists, optometrists, visual scientists, eye-care providers and trainees in ophthalmology to publish and promote their research and clinical observations internationally. MyJO also promotes continuous medical education through the stringent process of peer-review, submission review and editing.

Our togetherness was also reflected in selecting the name of the journal. The title ‘Malaysian Journal of Ophthalmology’ was selected based on a majority decision via a simple poll. The selection of the editorial board members is another sign of our solidarity with representatives from the public service, private ophthalmologists and academicians. This journal is by us and for us.

MyJO is now accepting research articles, case reports and letters to the Editor. Our first issue will be available in December 2018. MyJO is extending an invitation to all ophthalmologists, optometrists, visual scientists, eye-care providers and trainees to submit their work at <https://www.myjo.org/index.php/myjo/about/submissions>.
